GETTING TO KNOW... AMY C WILSON

Spiritual Medium, Psychometrist, Practitioner of the Magickal Arts for over 29 years, Lecturer of Metaphysics and the Occult & much more

Q: When and what age was your first exposure to the magickal arts?

A: My father was a professional tea leaf reader and psychic medium. He had a special stash of books on the occult and mysticism I used to sneak reading as a little girl. I've been seeing spirits since I can remember. In the 5th grade, I vividly recall seeing my great aunt who had passed, but it wasn't until high school that I realized not everyone saw what I saw.

Q: What practices mean the most to you personally?

A: Any fire related ritual, I really enjoy. That's what got me working with candles. Fire is the pure essence of will and I find it to be the most effective magickal application I practice.

Q: How did you come with the idea for Moon Serpent and Bone?

A: There were not too many outlets for markets dealing with the more obscure, bizarre and esoteric occult products or vendors in the Hudson Valley. If you wanted something like that, you would have to travel. There aren't many markets like mine in the area I could sell my things at, so I assumed others in the magickal community would feel the same way. The response has been overwhelming.

Q: What challenges have you faced because of the pandemic?

A: As solitary practitioner, it hasn't really affected my personal work. In terms of Other Worldly Waxes or Moon, Serpent & Bone, everything shifted to a virtual platform. The challenge was having to learn all the new technologies. We've all had to become "digital witches."

Q: What was the last offering you placed on your altar?

A: I was feeling very Mars and added some Ginger Snap cookies and Ginger Beer. It was that kind of Tuesday and I was looking for some extra motivation at the shop.

Two academic witches, our podcast comes out every new and full moon. Scorpio and Gemini analyze books, discuss topics, and interview people of interest to the modern witch.

MAGICKAL MUSING

LITHA

- S.E. Johnson, 2021

The day springs forth;
the brilliant orb
caresses Mother lovingly with
feverish fingers,
holds her close in
fiery arms,
tastes her with
burning lips.
She is awash in,
engulfed by,
light.

The longest day is
the height of the verdant king's power.
He stands resolute,
arms raised in triumph,
leaves waving in breeze.
The Dark bides its time,
waiting its turn.
its frosty breath burning off
under the sun's gaze.
We are torn between them,
as always,
the Wheel ceaselessly
turning seasons.
